

Jim's Mother Knows Just How to Make His Friends Enjoy Themselves

She Doesn't Bore Them With Entertainment or Worry Them With Formality, She Just Takes Them Into the Family

"OH, HE'S all right," remarked the boy whose sweater came proudly from the letter he had written on the football field. "But I had to visit three times because his mother's so strict. She thinks you can't be entertained at all. She's got to be forever making a fuss over you. I was glad to leave her."

This mother is different from the one I have in mind, which are brought to my classmates' home from college to spend this week.

They lived too far away to go home for the holiday, and so Jim offered them his home.

It was all so comfortable and nice that they were hardly home-sick at all. Jim's mother made them feel most friendly at home, even as if they were her own.

There's such an art in that. It doesn't mean the mother, who sends invitations to make herself of service, from her own door to her own door, which would mean business with her own Lord God.

It doesn't mean entertaining the guests until they are tired and exhausted.

JIM'S mother didn't even invite the boys to make themselves at home, she just made it impossible for them to do anything else.

She took them in just as if they had been her own boys.

There was no special table, no special chairs, no special service, no special anything at all.

The boys were just as if they were at home, and they were.

They were just as if they were at home, and they were.

They were just as if they were at home, and they were.

More than that, she liked to talk about them. She was as interested in Jim himself as if he were her own.

JIM may not have realized it, but he knew that his mother was just as interested in him as if he were her own.

If a boy's friends like his mother, they can be sure that she is worth knowing.

It's different with girls, for mothers are nearly always interested in their daughters, clothes and beauty, and good times, and good looks.

But sometimes a boy's mother will fall in love with his friends, and she will be interested in them as if they were her own.

When you have the friends of the boys, you have the friends of the girls.

She likes the boys of her own boys, and she likes the girls of her own girls.

She likes the boys of her own boys, and she likes the girls of her own girls.

She likes the boys of her own boys, and she likes the girls of her own girls.

She likes the boys of her own boys, and she likes the girls of her own girls.

Please Tell Me What to Do

By CYNTHIA

To "Helen D.":
Please tell me what to do. I am a young girl and I am in a very difficult position. I am in love with a boy who is not good for me. I am in a very difficult position. I am in love with a boy who is not good for me. I am in a very difficult position. I am in love with a boy who is not good for me.

In Defense of Women:
There is a certain amount of truth in the statement that women are the weaker sex. It is not a matter of strength, but of the ability to bear the burden of the world.

What Shall She Do?
A young girl who is in love with a boy who is not good for her should consider the following points: 1. Is the boy really in love with her? 2. Is he a good person? 3. Is he a good citizen? 4. Is he a good worker? 5. Is he a good friend?

The Woman's Exchange

An Inexpensive Buffet Meal:
Dear Madam—Will you please suggest to me an inexpensive menu for a buffet supper to be served to about a dozen people and also the best manner of serving?

Adventures With a Purse:
The household of a very dear friend of mine has come a blue-eyed baby girl, and she is so pretty and cuddly. But with her arrival comes the problem of what to buy. Of course, there are the conventional socks and hearties and things of that sort which every baby gets, but I wanted something different. So the search began, and ended with the discovery of white satin buttons lined with pink, and a white tunic for older times, to button a sweater. They come six on a card for $1.50, and for me I ordered six more for the present to my baby.

A Chance for Revenge:
THERE was something almost unearthly beautiful about Alina as she stood there in her long white robe, her eyes stary, and her black hair gleaming purple under the lights.

Things You'll Love to Make:
A young mother was confiding the other day that her small daughter seemed a most rare arrival, and every time she was put in the bathtub, and continued until she was lifted out. The crying couldn't be stopped until Liza came into the household. Liza is a coal-black doll baby, kinky hair, tiny feet, and a red collar.

The Reckless Age

By HAZEL DEVO HATCHER

Alina Foster is a spoiled member of the family. She is a spoiled member of the family.

When they finally stood up to go, she shook hands first with Santry and then turned to Long. Her eyes swept up to meet his, but almost immediately her lashes veiled them, and she turned away. The minute the door of her dressing room closed, she sat down on a chair, conscious of the fact that she was trembling all over. It had been a terrific strain on her nerves, not only meeting Long so unexpectedly, but glimpsing that expression in his eyes and knowing it for what it was.

Could she make him love her again, and then having brought him to her feet, laugh in his face as he had once done? The thought was in her mind, and she was so sure of it, that she was almost sure of it.

LOVE NOTS
By RAY KEAN
The Marriage Art:
Verily I say to you that married life is just one damnable little thing after another. And this damnable little thing cannot be undone any more than eggs can be unscrambled.

Love will be either mosaic or prosaic.
For love is a fitting together of many little heartaches, little smiles, little memories honored, little faults overlooked, little irritations tended discreetly, and all life's little tribulations into an everlasting happiness.

Remember, it is not the smile that you bring to the altar of marriage, but the smiles that stretch away from it that will determine your "ever-after" happiness.
